BLCO is Bonny Light Crude Oil pumped from the bonny terminal on the high seas. It is a premium feedstock, light and with low sulfur content, much in demand by refineries because, when refined, it produces a higher percentage of middle distillates than almost any other feedstock. In some cases, up to 30% more diesel fuel (d2) and jet fuel (kerosene, JP54) than other comparable crudes such as SLCO. You can buy it through private offers at competitive prices with a small discount to Brent, your reference price for crude oil. Please read more articles on BLCO specifications.
