Why Devlights?

1. Time zone

Argentina is only 1 hour ahead of the US East Coast and only 5 hours behind Central Europe. This allows synchronous communication and reduced response times between teams, enabling them to resolve issues quickly.
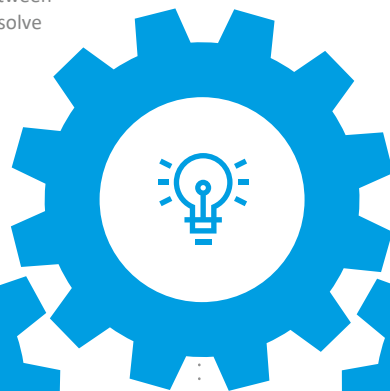

2. Culture

The cultures of the United States and Argentina were both strongly influenced by European civilization. Certain similarities extend into the work styles and business approaches across the continents, making it easier to collaborate.
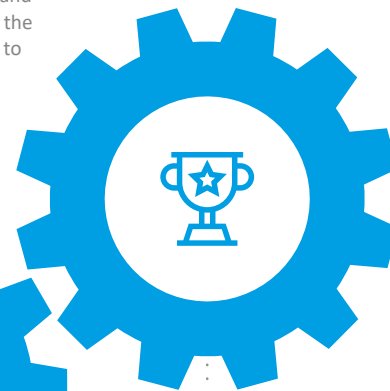

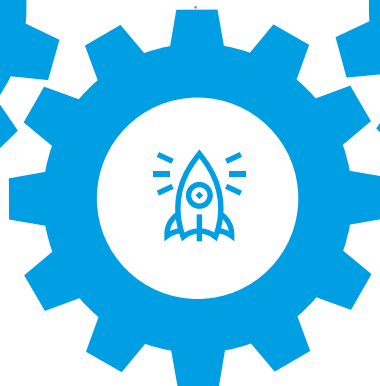

3. Costs

Hiring costs for developers in Argentina, although higher on average than places like India, are still less that half that of developers in the United States, with the added advantage of similar time zones.

4. English proficiency

Argentina was ranked first in Latin America, and 15th in the world for English skills by EF Education First, a highly respected educational institute based in Switzerland.

5. Tech Talent

According to Stack Overflow, even though India boasts a larger number of top users, the quality of developers in Latin America is higher or on par with Indian programmers.
