01 ABOUT REAL

The Network of Latin American Experts and Analysts, known by its Spanish acronym 'R.E.A.L.', is established as an independent and unbiased International Non-Governmental Organization (INGO) of common utility character. R.E.A.L. is legally registered in Washington D.C., and recognized by the IRS as tax-exempt under Internal Revenue Code Section 501(c)(3). We aim to provide solutions, advisory, consultancy, and project execution services throughout the Latin American region on issues of security, defense, development, and democracy.

Our strength relies on our geographical diversity and very carefully selected multidisciplinary professionals with a collective, extensive, and field-proven experience throughout fourteen countries of the American and European continents. Our professionals are alumni of the William J. Perry Center for Hemispheric Defense Studies and National Defense University, both U.S. Department of Defense institutions with which we take pride in sharing values, principles, and interests.

Despite our limited joint experience, each member who is an essential pillar in the organization has the necessary knowledge and technical expertise to address relevant issues, allowing us to be a well-positioned and reliable partner with the capacity to successfully carry out any project while avoiding mistakes resulting from improvisation.

We distinguish ourselves by our work methodology, a non-traditional way to address challenging issues in a complex region. We work individually but together, each one in their country of residence, under their own situational context, but coordinating activities, sharing knowledge, and learning from one another so that our work is synchronized and impactful. We bring innovative solutions to tackle the difficult challenges we face today.
