

AGROCOOP HISTORY

Agrocoop is a Brazilian cooperative, the result of the union of farmers located in the southeastern region of the country focused on the cultivation of foods that meet export-oriented parameters.

With cooperative members present in Espírito Santo, a state with a strong tradition in the production of the fruit and vegetable segment, especially in products such as coffee, ginger, banana and pink pepper, among others, it offers high quality standards to supply the Brazilian and international markets.

Another advantage of Agrocoop is that, due to its large production volume from different cooperative members, it can provide constant supply, preserving the quality of the products in all seasons of the year, also compensating the reduction of supply in case of climatic incidents.

Tradition and productive expertise, excellence in quality, reliability of origin, consistency in supply align with the logistical differential facilitating the supply of large consumer centers as well as exportation. Being close to the main Brazilian highways and ports, Agrocoop is able to sell its products with great agility and cost competitiveness.

In addition to the Brazilian market, Agrocoop targets the countries of North America, Central America, Europe, United Arab Emirates and China.

The cooperative's portfolio is comprised of a diversified line that covers everything from specialty coffees (roasted and ground, capsules and espresso), gourmet dried tomatoes, whole juice, banana raisin (special, organic with dark chocolate), fruits (in natura), ginger, pink pepper and others.

Within the principles of corporate and environmental responsibility and the nonstop pursuit of product quality, there is a present monitoring directed to conservation agriculture, providing the practice of sustainable agriculture, preserving the environment and the health of the producing families themselves, thus contributing, to maintain a better world for future generations. The performance present in the education of cooperative producers, with organic crops, makes the differential of the seal of quality of Agrocoop products.

Agrocoop brings to the world a range of healthy and selected products that are quickly and competitively dispatch of, with diversity and high quality standards, without neglecting the concern with sustainable cultivation in the environmental, social and economic spheres.
